C and C++ environment installation for Linux system

For Linux users, you just need to open the terminal and type in the following command sudo apt-get install build-essential

You can use the following command to check whether the installation is successful.

gcc -v